Company icon and link to home page which appears in every page on site. Home page is unique and doesn't follow format of rest of site. Final fonts used will be web safe. The colour scheme used across the site primarily consists of green (#045849) and a cream (#ffffed), with some black elsewhere. The main colours were entered into a web safe contrast checker (<https://webaim.org/resources/contrastchecker/>) and passed, achieving a ratio score of 8.32:1. This icon and the utilities to the right will stick at the top of the page as the user scrolls down.

This section provides links to the main utilities. Each will be highlighted when the user accesses the page using the link. All options can be accessed by new users. The 'Sign In' and 'Register' options disappear when a user is logged in and are replaced by 'Hello Name (Log Out)', with the name being that of the user. The 'Name' part includes a link to the user's account page. Similarly, the 'Log Out' part includes a link that takes the user back to the home page for all users.

This section succinctly explains what the site does and has been placed 'above the fold' so users are immediately directed to the content. They can also search the accommodation and activities immediately, without having to register. A picture of a stunning location is positioned to the right of the text as a visual attraction.

This section is included to keep existing users interested in the site whenever they revisit. As new accommodation is regularly added, it encourages them to have a look and shows the website is current. Each picture and text will contain a link to the relevant accommodation page. A reverse colour scheme has been selected to clearly distinguish each main section on the home page.

(5) :

This section aims to show that users can trust the company, as others have done so previously. Each testimonial will be hardcoded into the page. Links to external reviews could be considered at a later date but haven't been utilised here for simplicity.

The remaining utilities are placed here as they don't deserve the prominence that has been granted to those at the top of the page. Again, each option will be highlighted when a user is visiting the page. All are inaccessible to users who aren't logged in, apart from the 'Contact Us' page. If a user tries to access an option without being logged in (excluding 'Contact Us'), they will be asked to sign in first.

What does 'coorie' mean?

Coorie is a Scottish word that traditionally means to snuggle or cuddle and is derived from the old Gaelic word 'còsagach'. Recently, it has taken on a new meaning and now also represents a way of living, much like the Danish concept of Hygge.

According to its contemporary meaning, coorie is about finding happiness by embracing the Scottish outdoors, slowing down and taking pleasure from the smaller things in life. Country Living states that this happiness could be found in:

“... wild loch swimming, bracing walks in the Highlands or spending a Sunday smoking your own food, then wrapping yourself up in a Tartan blanket in front of a roaring fire in a country pub to 'blether' or chit-chat until the stars come out.”

How can I achieve coorie?

Although modern living makes it difficult to implement coorie, its benefits can be achieved during a holiday or short break. The accommodation offered by coorie is set amongst Scotland's hills, mountains, valleys, forests and waterways, which provide our guests with the opportunity to escape the day-to-day pressures of life and retreat to nature. During their stay, guests can tend to their physical and mental wellbeing by exploring the beautiful surroundings and taking part in the various activities on offer. Of course, relaxation, doing very little and enjoying a bit of 'me time' is also strongly encouraged!
